On July 10, 1890, five families who shared an equal passion for wine founded La Rioja Alta, S.A. Today, the fifth generation of their descendants continues, with the same enthusiasm, to combine age-old wisdom, winemaking expertise and cutting-edge technology. The winery uses only its own grapes, grown in 1,150 acres of vineyards in some of the best sites in the Rioja region. La Rioja Alta, S.A. employs time-honored, traditional practices including manual hand racking and aging in 225-liter American oak casks and in bottles. The aging is among the longest of any Rioja producer with up to 14 years—for the Gran Reserva wines—to produce Guillermo de Aranzabal, Owner their rich and complex wines.

In 1970, Enrique Forner founded Marqués de Cáceres Unión Vitivinícola S.A., a historic alliance of growers in the village of Cenicero in the Rioja Alta subregion of Rioja. The enterprising Forner family has been devoted to the wine trade for five generations. Their search for the best vine growers and vineyards in Rioja and the introduction of a Bordeaux concept revolutionized the production and business model of the region. The origin of Bodegas Cornelio Dinastía stems from the eagerness engendered in José María Sánchez, a chemical engineer coming from a winemakers family, who after being part of 3 different wineries as a partner for 30 years, decided established his own winery in 2016. The founder has evolved through a number of wineries as partner, finally decided start with his own project alone, Bodegas Cornelio Dinastía. From the outset, the idea has been the same: to ensure a rigorous grape sorting process and then minimal interference in the crafting of the wine. Only this way we can be as true as possible both to the vintage and the vineyard.

Bodegas Muga

Bodegas Muga is Rioja Alta's premier producer and the Muga family are unanimously considered to be one of Spain's most important winemaking families due to its philosophy revolving around adherence to tradition, dynamism, and winemaking of the highest quality. Beyond the fermentation and aging vessels produced in house, the winery racks all red wines by gravity, effectively filtering the wines naturally, followed by fining with egg whites. Although the Mugas have maintained all aspects of traditional Rioja winemaking, what makes the family great is their vision for the future and adaptability, while always holding true to their philosophy.

Bodegas Sierra Cantabria

The Eguren family prides themselves as viticulturists first, and as a result, all of the grapes are estate grown, and they do not source fruit from any third party source. As viticulturists in Rioja Alavesa, they grow a vast majority of Tempranillo, with only a small percentage of Garnacha and Graciano, as they recognize that Garnacha and Graciano do not ripen reliably in northern Rioja, and they do not want to source their Garnacha and Graciano from Rioja Baja. The Viñedos y Bodegas Sierra Cantabria collection is built upon a foundation of classic style Rioja wines made from a blend of selected vineyards.

Ramirez De La Piscina

The winery name honors the family's historic surname, which is an ancient aristocratic Medieval Riojan name, originating from a 12th Century Romanesque church nearby the vineyards called Santa María de la Piscina. All of the vineyards are estate owned and the vast majority of the plantings are Tempranillo on high density trellis. The oldest Tempranillo vineyards are head trained, and the family owns a few small plants of Garnacha, Viura, and Malvasia, that are used for the Rosado and Blanco. Ramirez de la Piscina champions the tradition of ageing classified, traditional styled Rioja."

We are a family winery, located in the city center of Labastida. The winery begins from a heritage of a viticulture dynasty with 24 hectares of own vineyards, some of them are more than one hundred years old. Our family has love and passion for the soils, the landscape and of course for the wines and this has passed on to next generations until today, without forgetting the Rioja Alavesa roots. The result is world-renowned wines, free of pesticide, trying to show the vineyards, the soils and our homes in each bottle of wine we produce.

Marqués de Carrión wine is located in Labastida, an historic village in Rioja Alavesa, covered by the Cantabria mountain range, at the bank of the river Ebro, 4 km far from Haro. The bottle cellar of Marqués de Carrión has a capacity of 1 million of bottles dedicated to Reservas and Gran Reserva. The quality of the grapes harvested in our vineyards in the town of Laguardia, a privileged area of the D.O.Ca Rioja for the high quality of its vineyards, joined to the carefully elaboration of the wine gets that our produced wines in Marqués de Carrión are the most valued and sought. Nowadays and since 1968 the company has been managed by Jose García Carrión, incorporating his son Luciano in 1997, who has given a significant push into the international markets.

Bodegas Olarra started in 1973 aiming for wines in a renewed style that has become widely recognised as 'classic Rioja' nowadays. This new style of wine required a technical shake-up to the traditional culture of Rioja and that was what Olarra did. The third generation of the Bodegas Olarra family is fully committed to keeping alive the spirit of innovation that was the very reason for Olarra to be set up back in 1973.
